Over the past several weeks the Community Services Section of the Santa Cruz Police Department has been hosting a Jeopardy-style game at each of the four Santa Cruz public elementary schools. A champion from each campus has been selected to represent their respective school in a final Jeopardy game scheduled for December 14, 2011 in the Santa Cruz City Council Chambers. The Mayor and Chief of Police will be co-hosting the event. The finalists will be competing for a small cash prize to be awarded to their school, as well as to earn bragging rights for their schools. All students, teachers, staff, family and friends are invited and encouraged to attend. The program helps build connections between the Santa Cruz Police Department and local schools in an educational and supportive environment. The events have been organized by Sgt. Mike Harms and Officer Joe Hernandez of the Community Services Section.
